Part 1: The five parts of a sale listing

Here is a practice listing. Label the five parts with the words from the board: price, unit or size, limit, dates, loyalty price.

Store Brand Shredded Mozzarella $1.99 with card (regular $2.99) 8 oz bag
Limit 4 Sale runs Friday to Thursday

1. The price: _____
2. The unit or size it applies to: _____
3. The limit: _____
4. The dates: _____
5. The loyalty price vs the regular price: _____

Part 2: Circular Scavenger Hunt (6 minutes)

Directions: With your partner, find each item in your circular. Write the product, the price, and the page. Highlight it in the circular. Every price needs its unit (per lb, per bag, each).

#	Find this	Product	Price and unit	Page
1	Something sold by the pound
2	Something with a limit
3	Something with a loyalty card price and a regular price
4	A sale that ends this week (write the date)
5	A buy-one-get-one deal
6	The cheapest protein food on any page (meat, beans, eggs, fish)

7	A fruit or vegetable under $2
8	A store brand item and the name brand version of the same thing
9	Something your family buys every week
10	Something in the household section (not food)

Buy-one-get-one math: the item in row 5 costs $_____ for one. If you take the deal and get two, what did each one cost? $_____. Is that a deal for you if you only need one? Circle: yes / no. Why? _____

Part 3: Shopping List Template

Directions: Take the recipe card your teacher gave you. Read every ingredient. Cross off anything on the pantry list on the board. Write the rest under the store section where it lives. Put a quantity next to every item. If the item is on sale in the circular this week, write the sale price and unit.

Recipe: _____ Serves: _____

Pantry list (from the board): _____

Circle two items on your list that should wait for a better week. For each one, write the reason using a price or a date.
