

Handout 3.9: Digital Footprint Check and Stress Plan

Name: _____ Date: _____ Period: _____

Directions: Page 1 is the digital footprint check: the definition, what lasts, how you project an image online, and six scenarios to classify. Page 2 is the Stress Plan, the formal check for this topic. It is done in the last 10 minutes, on your own, quietly. The rubric is printed on it so you can check your plan before you hand it in. Use roles, not names, for any person. Nothing on these pages asks for your account names or for you to show a screen.

Part 1: The footprint

Digital footprint means: _____

Four things that are public forever, or close to it:

Deleting removes ____ copy, not ____.

How you project an image online (the four channels from Lesson 3.5, online version). One example each:

Channel (picture cue)	Online version	Example
Appearance (a mirror)	your photos
Words (a speech bubble)	what you type
Nonverbal (an eye)	emojis, timing, what you like
Behavior (a footprint)	what you do when someone is picked on

The two-applicant story: what did the coordinator see in the first feed?

In the second? _____ Was the second student a mean person in real life? _____
Did that matter to the coordinator? _____

Part 2: Six scenarios

Online friends are real friends when they have what offline friends have: honesty about who they are, respect, and the freedom to say no. Classify each scenario as healthy, unhealthy, or log off and tell. For each “tell,” write the person (a role).

#	Scenario	Healthy, unhealthy, or log off and tell	Person to tell (a role)
1	A group chat with your team. Someone posts a joke about a teammate’s mistake in the game. Two people laugh. One person writes “come on, they feel bad enough.” The chat moves on.
2	Someone you have gamed with for two months, who says they are 13, asks you to keep your friendship a secret from your parents and wants to meet at the mall.

3	A friend from school and you video call to do homework together three nights a week. Sometimes you argue about answers. You always say goodbye.
4	It is 11:40 p.m. An argument in a group chat has gone eight messages. Nobody is calmer. Your stomach hurts.
5	A post you made got almost no likes. You delete it and post a different one. You feel bad for an hour and then you do not.
6	A screenshot of a classmate's private message is going around three group chats. People are adding comments. Someone sends it to you.

Grade 6 and IEP/504: scenarios 1, 2, 4, and 6.

Part 3: When to log off, and who to tell (copy from the slide; keep this)

Log off when: _____

Tell an adult when: _____

Who: _____

Grade 8 stretch (private, not collected): the three things you would want a coordinator to see if they looked you up, and one line on what you would need to change to make that true.

Closure line (turned in with the plan): The one thing from this topic I will actually use is

Page 2: My Stress Plan (the Topic 3.2 check; 10 minutes; 12 points)

Name: _____ Date: _____ Period: _____

Use your toolkit card. Use roles, not names. Check the rubric before you hand this in.

1. One stressor. By category (school, friends, home, phones, money) or a general description. No names.

When _____ stresses me,

2. Two tools from my toolkit card, and when each fits.

Tool 1: _____ I will use it when: _____

Tool 2: _____ I will use it when: _____

Grade 8 (Exceeds): my before and after ratings from the test: Tool 1 ____ to ____; Tool 2 ____ to ____

3. One person to talk to. A role, not a name.

I can talk to _____ because _____

Grade 8 (Exceeds): if that person is not available, I can talk to _____

4. One boundary with my phone. A time it goes away, a chat I leave, a notification I turn off, or a place it does not go.

My phone will _____ at / in / when _____

This would lower my stress number because _____

Grade 8 (Exceeds): what will make this boundary hard to keep, and what I will do about it: _____

Grade 6: one tool; choose the boundary from this list: phone out of the bedroom at night / leave one group chat / turn off notifications for one app / no phone at the dinner table.

Sentence starters: "When ___ stresses me, I will ." "I can talk to because ." "My phone will at ___."

Mini rubric (the teacher scores; check your plan against it first)

Criterion	Not Yet (1)	Approaching (2)	Meets (3)	Exceeds (4)
Stressor and tools	The stressor is missing or the tools are not from the toolkit	One stressor and one tool, or two tools with no situation	One stressor (by category or description) and two tools from the toolkit card, each with the situation it fits	Meets, and the two tools are ranked with the student's own before and after ratings from Lesson 3.8 as evidence
Person to talk to	No person named	A person named with no reason, or "nobody"	One person (a role) named, with one sentence on why that person for that stressor	Meets, and a second person named for the case where the first is not available
Phone boundary	No boundary, or a boundary that is not about the phone	A boundary with no reason	One specific boundary (a time, a chat, a notification, a place) and one sentence on why it would lower the stress number	Meets, and one sentence on what will make the boundary hard to keep and how to handle that

Total: ____ / 12. Topic assessments category. One retake after a conversation; best score counts. A plan with a real name on it is handed back to change before it is scored.

Teacher key

Part 1: digital footprint, everything about you online, including what others post about you. Four things that last: posts, comments, photos, likes, and any private message someone screenshots. Deleting removes your copy, not theirs. Channels: photos; what you type; emojis, timing, likes; what you do when someone is picked on. The story: first feed, a person who helps; second feed, a person who mocks; not a mean person in real life; it did not matter to the coordinator, because the feed was all they had.

Part 2: 1 healthy (a joke landed wrong and someone stepped in; the chat moved on). 2 log off and tell (secrecy from parents plus a request to meet; tell a parent or the counselor today). 3 healthy (honest, respectful, ends well). 4 log off (past the sleep window, three messages with no one calmer, body signals going off); tell is optional unless it continues. 5 unhealthy pattern to notice (comparing worth to likes), not a tell; a self-talk swap fits. 6 log off and tell (a screenshot of someone going around; tell a teacher, the counselor, or the technology coordinator; do not forward it).

Part 3, board lists: log off when the chat is making your body signals go off, it is after your sleep window, an argument has gone three messages with no one calmer, or someone is being hurt. Tell an adult when anyone asks to meet or for photos, a screenshot of someone is going around, anyone talks about hurting themselves or others, or you are scared. Who: the counselor, the technology coordinator, any teacher, the office, an adult at home. [Sal: names and rooms.]

Stress Plan: scored on the mini rubric, 12 points. Keep the Lesson 3.8 test sheets at hand to check that the two tools were actually tested. The stressor does not have to be the starred one from the map; any category or general description counts.
